

as named for Col. William Oldham, a Revolutionary War officer who became a chief of Jefferson County's early magistrates. Oldham County's 1824 boundary

As an act of the State Legislature on December 17, 1823, provided that Oldham County from parts of Jefferson, Shelby and Henry Counties, Kentucky 1792, the new county

OLDHAM COUNTY KENTUCKY ~ 1824 and back to Westport before settling down in Lexington in 1838. This pictorial representation of some of the county's interesting landmarks and continued settlement in the little Kentucky River, but in 1826 partition was taken during the formation of Trimble. The county seat was from Newburg to Westport to Glasgow